

Cartel VI: Fall, 2013

Cartel Magazine is a collection of humorous personal essays on a variety of topics. In this issue, Jenny Bahn writes about the increasingly loud tick of her Biological Clock. Paul Shirley tells of his conversion from coffee-hater to coffee-drinker, and explains how that conversion showed him the meaning of life. Neuropsychologist Katie Levisay breaks down why, exactly, time seems to speed up as we age. Matteson Perry relates a story about bribing a Cambodian border guard. Brian Oliu details his love/hate relationship with Diamond Dallas Pages yoga program. And Scott Muska explains the concept of Narcissistic Philanthropy.
