

Oh no, not a poetry book! Hippie moonlight rainbow streams? Endless rain showers in late autumn? Worry not. Here is something a little different: The tale of Barack Hussein Obama, a romp composed in the traditional Japanese haiku format (three lines, consisting of five, seven, and five syllables), penned by one of those staunch right-wing astroturfers. Includes more than 300 strikes at the ideological plate armor surrounding the most radical president since James Earl Carter. Offers sections such as Beginnings, Czars, Associates, and Hope--nothing is off limits. Its a Sputnik moment! BONUS: Includes more than a dozen anagrams of Baracks best quotes. And let me be clear The first downgrade president Tee time is at noon About the Author: Rufus Kings lives in the belly of the liberal, fruit-and-nut state of California. As part of the often ignored normal 40 percent of the population, he must use the secret conservative handshake. This is his first book.
