

Most everyone has something they've always wanted to do and for many people the only thing holding them back is fear. Unbeknownst to many, the route to where you want to go is through your fear. If you want to create something in the future, you have to give up your now - who you are. This story is about a woman who did just that, leaving all the securities of home, she faced her fears of the unknown and traveled the world for a year with her easel, paints and her 13 year old daughter. Traveling alone, on a limited budget, they faced unforeseen challenges and discovered their strengths, all the while having an incredible adventure. If you ever wanted to know, what would happen if? Read Journeys: a grand adventure around the world and within. It is an exciting adventure in a time when the world was less consumed with fear and uncertainty. Many of the paintings that go along with this story are at www.judyedwards.com
