Excerpt from The Diary of William Hedges, Esq. (Afterwards Sir William Hedges), During His Agency in Bengal, Vol. 1: As Well as on His Voyage Out and Return Overland (1681-1697)The work now issued to the Society requires some prefatory explanation as to the manner in which it is presented, and some information also regarding the Diarist beyond what has been supplied in Mr. Barlows Introductory Notes.A transcript of the Diary was brought to my notice some years ago by the Rev. James Long, to whom it had been lent by Mr. Barlow. How the Diary itself fell into this gentlemans hands may best be told by an extract from a letter with which he has favoured me:I was living near Broad stairs, and not unfrequently visited Canterbury. There was a bookseller in the High Street, named Bohn, from whom I had made purchases on one or two occasions, and on September 20th, 1875 (so I find from my log-book), in answer to my usual inquiry for old Voyages and Travels, he mentioned that he had an old manuscript which perhaps might interest me. A glance showed me that its author, William Hedges, must be the same gentleman whom Bruce {Annals of the E. I. Company, ii, pp. 467-505) mentions as the first Governor, as well as Agent, for the Bengal Factories. So I bought it at once.There was no mark, nor stamp, nor line of any description to indicate the previous owner, but I understood from Mr. Bohn that he had it as part of a lot at a Bale; and my impression is that he said a sale of some things belonging to Lord Sondes - and this is all I know about the books history. The condition proved that it had been very lightly esteemed... I copied it carefully, and I think accurately, intending to get it printed. But I discovered that the half-dozen copies I intended to distribute among my few friends, as an amusing * illustration of early trade under difficulties, would cost nearly as much as an entire edition, whilst it would probably really not interest a single modern individual, so I gave up the idea. Mr. Long, however, happened to call one day, and thought with myself that it conveyed a good insight into the inner life and habits of some of the Honourable Company's servants, so I lent him the transcript.
